

Here is the latest look at real estate market activity near you. The information in this report was generated from data gathered by the Greater Louisville Association of REALTORS® and is believed to be accurate, but some data can fluctuate as new sales information is recorded.

For this report, here is a description of what each of these data points represents:

Sale Price to List Price Ratio:	This is the sale price expressed as a percentage of the list price at the time the home went under contract. A home listed at $400,000 that sold for $395,000 would have a 98.75% sale price to list price ratio because $395,000 is 98.75% of $400,000. A $400,000 home that sold for $410,000 would have a 102.5% sale price to list price ratio because the home sold for 2.5% above asking price. When numbers show over 100%, that is a good indicator that multiple offers were in play.
Sale Price to Original List Price Ratio:	This is the sale price expressed as a percentage of the original list price from when the home was first listed for sale. If this value is lower than the sale price to list price ratio, that tells you that a price reduction occurred before the home went under contract. In most cases, this is because the home was listed too high in the first place, not necessarily because something went wrong.
Months of Inventory:	This is the number of months it would take to sell all the homes currently available for sale if no other homes were listed. This number helps to determine whether we are in a Buyer's Market or a Seller's Market. Numbers in the 3's and below usually put us safely in a Seller's Market.
Days Until Contract	This is the average number of days a home was on the market before the seller accepted an offer.
